DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

I think that all these “peaceful protests” are just excuses for people to riot and loot stores. In my opinion, these people are just protesting because they didn’t get their way in the election which is the opposite of what a democracy is. People should accept the outcome of the election and respect the president regardless if they don’t like the him or her. That’s what makes a democracy. Many other countries like Cuba and North Korea don’t have an election and are not a democracy. These protesters should be proud that they live in a free country where they can express their opinions. This means that they should also respect the meaning behind certain things like the American Flag or even the Election. They are both symbols of freedom which we should be proud that we have. People that burn the American Flag should be ashamed of themselves because it is not only a symbol of all the men and women who serve this country, but it is also a symbol of freedom. President Trump has barely been in office for a week and people haven’t stop protesting since he was inaugurated. These people should at least give him a chance if they don’t like him, and even if they don’t like him they should still respect him. Nowadays, it seems people have a reason to protest regardless of what the President does or says.
